In 1893, Thomas Edison built the first “Movie Studio” in the United States when he constructed the Black Maria, a tar paper covered structure near his laboratories in New Jersey and asked circus, vaudeville, and dramatic actors to perform for the camera.

In the 20th Century, The Movie Studio, Inc. would create a vertically integrated disruptor motion picture production and distribution company that would change the way independent motion pictures are made and distributed. The Movie Studio acquires, develops, produces and distributes independent motion picture content for worldwide consumption in theatrical, video on demand (VOD), foreign sales and on various media devices. The Movie Studio, Inc. is disrupting traditional media content delivery systems with its digital business model of motion picture distribution and intends direct server access of its content with “Geo-Fractured” territories for worldwide distribution. The Movie Studios latest releases are available on Showtime, Comcast and Amazon Prime. The company was formerly known as Destination Television, Inc. and changed its name to The Movie Studio, Inc. in November 2012. The Movie Studio, Inc. was founded in 1961 and is based in Ft. Lauderdale, Florida.

In 2015, The Movie Studio acquired certain assets of Seven Arts Entertainment (OTC: SAPX), a diversified company with motion picture productions, including major motion pictures with top Hollywood stars, such as, John Goodman, John Malkovich, Ving Rhames, Burt Reynolds, Tom Sizemore, Tom Arnold, Tim Robbins and more. The Movie Studio also develops, manufactures and distributes independent motion picture content for worldwide consumption.

In 2016, The Movie Studio entered into a definitive agreement to acquire the twelve titles “Arrowhead” Film Library that has one-hundred million dollars in box office seats and boasts such classic films such as “Johnny Mnemonic” with Keanu Reeves, “Shot of Glory” with Robert Duvall, “No Good Deed” with Samuel L. Jackson, “Never Talk to Strangers” with Antonio Banderas and others.

The studio uses a variety of high definition cameras including the usage of the “Red” camera used in filming contents in the blockbuster “Jurassic World” among other Hollywood Blockbuster movies. The Company has legacy distribution agreements with major studios including, MGM, Lionsgate, New Line and has entered new distribution agreements and recent releases on Showtime, Comcast and Amazon Prime reaching over 100 million

U.S. households creating intrinsic value for our shareholders and potential major distribution channels for past and future releases.

The Commercial Video on Demand (VOD) platform compares with business-to-business (B2B) Netflix, Hulu, Comcast or Amazon Prime for movie theaters. The Company intends to leverage its .99 cents a month Over The Top (OTT) subscription-based web platform where “Everyone’s a Star” and can register to be featured in an upcoming Movie Studio. motion picture as a core value proposition.

The Commercial VOD (Video on Demand) technology now owned by The Movie Studio is a far more efficient means of distribution, with the goal of increasing overall revenues for all parties in the motion picture production and distribution channels. It breaks away from the physical copy’s distribution format, DVDs or hard drive files, and eliminates piracy, revenue loss from copying and video manipulation. It will eliminate the theft of content and increases revenues for producers and the related companies and could create future revenue generation for MVES.

The Company is in pre-production on its next film “Cause & Effect,” a Miami street movie about the seedy underbelly of South Florida nightlife, and has also begun pre-production on “PEGASUS” a family movie about a young girl and a horse and is planned to be “signature film.” The Movie Studio, Inc. sets itself apart from other studios by being the only major independent studio located in South Florida and by managing its own in-house marketing & distribution department.
